The benefits
OF BELONGING
Being part of the Society for Endocrinology places you in a community dedicated to supporting you in your career and helping you to...

Get involved...
at dedicated endocrine events locally, nationally and internationally. Discover the latest advances and get involved with developing best practice in your field.

Demonstrate your value...
and get recognised. Share your work with an international audience at our annual SfE BES conference, present an interesting case study or lecture at the Endocrine Nurse Update, or apply for the annual Award for Endocrine Nursing.

Fund your future...
through a range of grants intended to support you through your career.

Each year the Society provides more than £450,000* in funding to its members

Find your voice...
the voice of endocrine nursing, we campaign on the issues that matter to you. As a member, you can help us take your profession forward: getting involved in developing best practice, sharing knowledge worldwide, or even contributing towards endocrine nursing publications.

Step up your career... with a dedicated Masters-level module in Endocrine Nursing exclusive to the Society for Endocrinology.

Discover opportunities to network...
and become part of an endocrine community dedicated to supporting each other across the globe: sharing advice, knowledge and best practice. Many endocrine nurses work in isolation but, as a member, support and advice are never far away.

Get the help and guidance you need...
with access to leading learning resources, specialist endocrine publications and advisory documents produced specifically to assist endocrine nurses.

Demonstrate your value...
and get recognised. Share your work with an international audience at our annual SfE BES conference, present an interesting case study or lecture at the Endocrine Nurse Update, or apply for the annual Award for Endocrine Nursing.
